Sharemarket Commentary

Global equity markets continued their record breaking ascent in November with the MSCI World Index gaining +1.8% reaching new record highs throughout the month. US markets proved the driver of global returns yet again with the Dow Jones Industrial Index gaining +3.8%, pushing through the 24,000 level, as the broader S&P500 index gained +3.1%. President Trump's tax overhaul looked to overcome a major hurdle late in the month with the US Senate narrowly approving the President's plan to cut both corporate and personal tax rates. Japan's Nikkei finished the month +3.3% higher, continuing its strong run on the continuation of the highly accommodative monetary policies known as Abenomics and the weaker Yen. Conversely, Europe's Stoxx 50 index paused for breath following its recent strength, falling -2.8% over the month.

Domestically, the RBA kept rates unchanged at 1.5% for the 15th consecutive month, delivering a downward revision to the inflation trajectory, despite a modest pick up in wages growth. Highlighting the challenging conditions for Australia's heavily indebted consumer, retail sales for the September quarter disappointed, contracting -0.3%. Commodity markets were mixed, with the iron ore price rebounding +16.1% to a 10 month high as Chinese steel producers look to ramp up production before reforms to cut pollution are introduced. Oil gained +2.1% as OPEC and non OPEC countries agreed to extend production cuts, whilst both Coal and the Base Metals were slightly weaker down -3.1% and -2.6% respectively.

The broader Australian sharemarket as measured by the ASX300 index had a solid month gaining +1.7%. The Fund's ex 50 benchmark was similarly strong, gaining +3.2% with all sectors finishing in positive territory. As has been the case throughout the year, Small and Mid Resources outperformed, with many of the energy plays reacting favourably throughout the month given their leverage to the oil price, whilst many of the miners, including those exposed to the battery technology hype continued to find strong support. Within industrials, as was the case in the large caps the REITs had a strong month gaining +3.7% courtesy of bond yields both domestically and in the US falling sharply. Financials gained +3.6% with many of the fund managers finding support in sympathy of buoyant global markets. Contrary to the exuberance of prior months, companies with Chinese "daigou" distribution channels came in for a breather over the month with the likes of a2 Milk and Bellamy's finishing the month lower following gains of +70% in the prior 3 months.

In company news, Integral Diagnostics rallied +34% following a receipt of an intention by Capital Health to make a takeover. We increased our holding in Pact by participating in a rights issue undertaken to fund two acquisitions (an Asian and an Australian materials handling acquisition) with the Asian acquisition announced giving Pact scale in a growing part of the world. Mayne Pharma hosted their AGM which highlighted early signs of stabilisation for their generics business which has been the cause of weakness over the past 6 months, whilst their branded and contract manufacturing divisions continue to grow at a steady pace. We also benefited from our participation in the Propel Funerals IPO with the stock rallying +25% following its listing.

The IML Future Leaders Fund had a solid month gaining +1.8%, albeit below the benchmark's return. Our caution toward the highly volatile mid and small resources sector held back relative performance, however, we remain comfortable with our positioning given the huge swings we have become accustomed to from this sector. The portfolio benefited from strong returns from the likes of; Integral Diagnostics, Melbourne IT, Steadfast, Tox Free, Z Energy, GWA, Clydesdale Bank and Pinnacle Investments.

Investor sentiment continues to remain buoyant as the global economy appears likely to grow fairly strongly in 2018. While this may be so, it remains a challenging environment for many companies to grow their earnings given the intensely competitive nature of most sectors. With US interest rates set to increase further in the near future, we remain cautious as many markets are at record highs and some excesses are beginning to appear. We continue to focus our attention on good quality companies that we believe are well positioned to grow their earnings and dividends in the years ahead.
